

ABSTRACT

Sanitary and breathable packaging for food products is of the type that includes a container having laminated walls with at least an insertion opening which is closed so as not to be subsequently reusable. At least one weakening line is provided for tearing to allow contents to be extracted. Holes are provided around the package in size and number for internal aeration.